ACTING WORKSHOP (10 – 200 guests – 1hr to 3hrs – Indoors or Outdoors) Price: £845.00 event set up fee + £33.00 per head

The activity starts with a standard 'actors warm up', which includes a small amount of Tai Chi, a little limbering up, and some vocal gymnastics. Using props from the box, actors and delegates start with a 'Whose Line Is It Anyway' style game. Delegates work with our musicians and actors to come up with short and witty lines or phrases. The group are then divided into small teams where they are given a prop and have to improvise creating an advert for it in front of the group, without mentioning the name of the product. The group are divided once again, this time into pairs. They are given a choice of props from our prop box and then, with the help of their acting mentors have to design an advert for their company, using a totally different approach. This can be a lot of fun and very revealing. The adverts are then showcased, to much hilarity, in front of all the teams.

Our professional host who runs the 'Children in Need Auction of Promises' each year on Radio 2 with Terry Wogan and appears regularly on The Antiques Road Show ensures a memorable, unusual and fun activity.

Imagine at the close of your conference the roar of 'the call'... the loud and exciting tribal sound of the lead tribesman. The tribesmen then perform the overwhelmingly powerful 'HAKA' to the delight (and surprise) of your guests. Within moments of our team finishing their demonstration, we have everyone ready to go and take them on a whirlwind energiser, where they will learn and perform the HAKA as one unified team. Building towards a powerful finale performance, the group will go head to head in a bit of healthy tribal competition. Then the battle for tribal supremacy is won as we come together as one tribe for the ultimate HAKA. With few props this activity is perfect as an overseas energiser.

Teams will then develop their brand, giving it a catchy name, designing the packaging and making their prototype. A marketing strategy is then devised to show how they intend to advertise their product. The proof, as they say is in the pudding - after a rigorous tasting session (it's a tough job!) each team will present their sales pitch to the judges and perform their adverts in a fun finale!
